

A photograph of two boxers in a ring, wearing protective headgear and gloves, with the word 'BOXING' overlaid in large, bold, white letters. The boxers are in a defensive stance, facing each other. The background is slightly blurred, showing the ropes of the ring and some spectators. The overall tone is warm and focused.

Promoting “Play Philippines” to the world requires a united effort and a dedicated service of all concerned citizens of this beautiful country.

This 2009 Philippine Index of Sports Tourism Sites and Destination will not materialize without the many articles, pictures, images, notes and insights of people and institutions used or borrowed for the purpose of selflessly projecting the Philippines to the world as a one-stop-action destination where sports from A to Z (Angling to Zip Lines) can be learned, experienced and played anywhere across the Philippines.

We deeply express our gratitude to all those whose work of art, books, publications and literature have been used to make this initial databank effort worthy of guiding those that seek information for the advancement of Philippine tourism and of our country’s tourism (business) industry.

This effort is made to praise God for the blessings of topography that He has endowed to this country.

Site/Facility Profile

From the four corners of this old yet thriving boxing gym emerged some of the world's best Filipino pugs, and countless elite boxers who have brought honors for the Philippine flag.

The national boxing gym, located at the Rizal Memorial Sports Complex, produced a lot of luminaries in the field of boxing who turned out to be not just the country's best but of the world, as well.

Among those who sparred, sweated and triumphed inside the state-of-the-art gym was Mansueto "Onyok" Velasco, whose silver medal in the 1996 Atlanta Olympics delighted the Filipinos no end. There's also the equally famous Harry Tanamor, the Beijing Olympian, who has many titles tucked under his belt. Tanamor became the toast of the country after winning the gold medal in the World Cup in 2008. He also won the silver medal in the 2007 World Championship in Chicago.

Aside from the national boxing gym in Manila, the government has also built a boxing training gym at the Teacher's Camp in Baguio City.

Site/Facility Profile

One of the famous boxing gyms in the Philippines is the Elorde Boxing Gym.

Named and constructed in tribute to one of the country's greatest boxers of all time – Gabriel “Flash” Elorde – the main boxing gym is located in General Santos Avenue in Sucab, Paranaque. It has more than 10 satellite gyms spread all over the archipelago.

Elorde was the undisputed super featherweight champion in the 1960s. He won the world title on March 16, 1960 by knocking out Harold Gomes in seven rounds. He defended the crown 10 times until June 15, 1967 when he lost by a majority decision against Yoshiaki Numata of Japan. His reign for seven years and three months made him the longest world junior lightweight titlist.

Based on the International Boxing Hall of Fame, Elorde is not only the best fighter to ever come out of the Philippines but also of the Asia-Pacific region. He's one of the two Filipino fighters, along with Pancho Villa, to have been elevated in the New York Hall of Fame.

To date, there are nine (9) branches of the Elorde Boxing Gym that offers quality training in boxing.

SHAPE UP GYM

Baguio City
Cordillera Administrative Region

Site/Facility Profile

The gym that hosted Manny Pacquiao's draining rounds of sparring at the mitts with coach Roach and rounds of isometrics exercises with conditioning coach Alex Ariza is located inside the Cooyesan Hotel in Baguio City.

Owing to its high elevation, Baguio City is eight degrees Celsius lower compared to the average temperature of the rest of the country. With this cool climate, not to mention the scenic greeneries and rainforests across its mountain ranges, high performance training in any sports is very ideal.

No wonder the world's top pound-for-pound boxer opted to spend a few months of preparations in Baguio City for his November 14, 2009 title fight in Las Vegas against Miguel Cotto.

Pacquiao can never be wrong.

The Shape Up Gym is the chosen venue for such a very critical boxing preparations by the Pacquiao training team that includes the former U.S. Olympic athlete as Pacquiao's sparmates, among others.

If the boxing icon loves to shape up at Shape Up Gym, why can't you?

BRIAN VILORIA BOXING CLUB AND TRAINING GYM

Ilocos Sur
Region 1 – Ilocos Region

Site/Facility Profile

Named after and built by the reigning IBF Light Flyweight champion Brian “The Hawaiian Punch” Viloría, the Brian Viloría Boxing Club and Training Gym was constructed with the hope of discovering the next Filipino champions.

Viloría, who traces his roots to Ilocos Sur, said he decided to put up a boxing gym to help aspiring Ilocano boxers get into their best boxing form.

The boxing gym was opened May 2009, thus ensuring that equipment are new and will pass the standard of anyone who wishes to become a great fighter like Viloría.

Viloría actually assured his countrymen that he will bring foreign coaches to the country to teach the aspiring Filipino pugs the basics and the secrets to success, which he is now savoring.

ALA BOXING AND FITNESS GYM

Cebu City
Region 7 – Central Visayas

Site/Facility Profile

If there's one boxing gym that deserves to be in the shortlist of the best gyms in the country, it's got to be the ALA Boxing and Fitness Gym.

This boxing gym is credited for the boom of boxing in Cebu and has been known as the driving force in making Cebu a center of world-class boxing championship fights.

The mission of the boxing gym is: “To help poor children develop their boxing skills, reach their potentials, and achieve their dreams of fame and financial independence.”

The main gym is complete with all of the things a fighter needs, including various sizes of punching bags, a ring, and even a basketball court.

ALA Boxing Promotion's brush with fame started after staging the first world-class fight in Cebu in 2007. It hosted for the first time a world-class title bout featuring Filipino AJ Banal and Panama's Rafael Concepcion in headliner dubbed “Laban na Banal, Panahon na.”
